

OLD 'SORE' HEALED BY CRUSHED ROCK

Phoenix Street Now Reputable Boulevard With an Even Surface

BUT COST WAS STEEP

Reports Show Expenditures on 'Horror Road' Amounted to Twice First Estimate

Repairing Phoenix street in West Tulsa and transforming it from a mudhole into a macadam highway wasn't as inexpensive as had been anticipated, as shown by figures made public Wednesday by the Automobile club, which is responsible for the improvement project.

Instead of $2,000, the amount thought necessary at the start, the half-mile stretch cost approximately $7,500, or slightly more than twice the estimate. Of this amount, the city furnished about $1,500, the remainder having been nearly subscribed mostly by members of the Automobile club.

Much Cost to Club.
Credit for improving Phoenix street belongs to the Automobile club, to J. A. Hull, chairman of the club's finance committee, who has not only raised money but who has gone out every day to inspect the improvements. To Street Commissioner O. A. Steiner, who helped superintend the improvements; to C. F. Hopkins, vice president of the club of commerce, who got quick action from the Finance and Midland Valley railroads and from Coaden and company, which companies furnished cinders, and to City Engineer C. E. Griggs, who made many suggestions and gave material assistance in the work. Mayor T. H. Evans said Wednesday, "I. W. Holmes, superintendent of the Texas company, also assisted greatly by furnishing teams and crushed stone. There are many others who helped."

Claims Contractors Violated Agreement

Damages of $9,398.94 were asked in a suit filed in district court Wednesday by Isaac Ruby against T. O. Willis and W. H. Dennis, on allegations that the defendants failed to pay all material bills during the construction of a brick store building on a lot at 514 East Twenty-first street, owned by Ruby, and that in breach of the contract the plaintiff was compelled to pay these bills.

LUMBER GOING TO ROT

Frank Z. Curry writes to The World and Tolls of Conditions Over South: Rees Conspiracy.
"All through the lumber section of the south lumber is going to rot and decay along the railroad tracks because there is no market for it and the cotton prices are below cost of production," writes Frank Z. Curry to The World from Miami, Florida, where he is spending the winter.
"The weather is fine here," he says. "The temperatures run from 65 to 75 degrees during the day. Democratic free trade played havoc with Florida. The Cuban fruit and vegetable growers undersell the Florida growers. The result is that many banana, pineapple and truck farms have gone to neglect. Tomato growers are also hard hit. Curry adds that in passing through Georgia he found that there is no doubt but that a conspiracy was formed to cut Harding's vote in the state. Hundreds of precincts had no tickets at all. That was true of his home town, Hampton, where no republican ballots were available and half the people refused to vote at all.

Get Jury in Trial of $51,989 Damage Suit

Suit for damages of $51,989.50 was begun in district court No. 3 Wednesday when the selection of the jury was completed for hearing of the case of Ruby Shaw against M. C. Brubaker and the Wilcox Oil and Gas company. The damages are asked as the result of an automobile accident November 12 at the intersection of Archer street and Denver avenue when the plaintiff was struck by a car operated by Brubaker.

TULSA GETS REP AS COIN CENTER

Promoters Flock Here to Inaugurate Business by Local Capital

Apparently Tulsa is regarded as the financial center of the United States at present. Promoters and owners of industrial concerns both large and small are literally flocking to the Magic City, bringing with them the hope that in Tulsa they may be able to obtain money with which to build factories and market their products.

During the past week no less than half a dozen concerns have sought to locate here, it was learned at the chamber of commerce Wednesday. The owners and promoters have tried Detroit, Kansas City and other prominent manufacturing cities for finances, but their efforts met with failure. So they turned to Tulsa as a "sure shot." But so far they have met with little local encouragement.

A fruit drying establishment, a novelty phonograph factory and a concern which would manufacture an automobile belt lace are among those who would locate here—providing local capital could be obtained with which to finance them.

Pleads Not Guilty to Charge of Possession

J. L. McDonald, arrested by the police at Bartlesville in possession of intoxicating liquor, entered a plea of not guilty to the charge at his arraignment Wednesday before U. S. Judge, United States Commissioner, and was held under bond of $1,000 for preliminary hearing December 23.

Woman Asks $21,500 for Injury by Auto

Damages of $21,500 were asked by Gertrude W. Hill in a suit filed in superior court Wednesday against Julius Kahn growing out of an automobile accident in this city November 9, in which the woman was thrown to the pavement at Ninth street and Boston avenue by a car operated by the defendant.

Admits Bogus Check Charge and Is Held for District Court

Robert A. LaRue, arrested at Oklahoma City and held for Tulsa county officers, entered a plea of guilty to forgery at his arraignment before Justice H. J. Gray Wednesday morning and was committed to jail under bond of $5,000 for action by district court.

The prisoner admitted cashing a bogus check for $350 at a Tulsa bank December 2, made on the First Central National bank of St. Louis and signed with the name of John A. Pennington.

PHONE GIRLS ARE ROBBED

Had Handits Take Pay Envelopes From Store of Operators.
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 15.—Police today were without any clue to the identity of the four daring handits who held up and robbed the Drexel Exchange of the Northwest Telephone company here. The handits obtained $2,000 from Miss Julia Dickinson, chief operator, forcing a score of "hello girls" to hand their pay envelopes, which they had just drawn.

The robbery was one of the most dangerous in police annals. The men escaped in a waiting automobile.
